

FIND YOUR NEXT READ!

Sometimes finding a new book to read can be frustrating and time-consuming. Read on for some ideas on where to look to discover that next awesome title or author!

First stop is the Spirit Lake Public Library card catalog. Go to slpublib.com, and then click on the ONLINE LIBRARY CATALOG button. At the top, you will see the scrolling ribbon of new book titles. If a cover catches your eye, click on it, and you will be taken to that title in the catalog. Click on the title to open the bibliographical record to find more information and read a summary. Another angle is to put in the search bar the title of a book that you know that you like. Again, click on the title to open the bibliographical record. Scroll down and you will find suggestions of top picks, similar series (if applicable), and similar authors.

Another resource on our catalog page is Wowbrary. That link can be found under electronic resources. Click on it to be taken to a sign-up page. Wowbrary is a service that sends you free email alerts to let you know about the newest items in our collection.

Other online resources to look for different books, series or authors include: www.goodreads.com, www.readupnext.com, www.fantasticfiction.com, www.bookseriesinorder.com, www.bookseries.org, and www.literature-map.com. Some of these websites have a tracking feature for what you have read and what you want to read. You will need to create an account with them in order to do that. Also, most authors have personal websites where they list their books. Explore these different resources and see which one or two work best for you!

If you are a little more “old school,” the Friends of the Spirit Lake library provides a monthly magazine called “Book Pages.” It is a lovely little publication that features genre titles, interviews of authors, and plenty of reviews. Pick up your free copy at the Spirit Lake Public Library.

Finally, you can always ask the staff at SLPL for recommendations. We truly enjoy helping patrons find new books to read!
